
date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by paisleypeng...@gmail.com - 2009/09/28 15:42

One of my favorite Victorian protagonists is an Egyptologist with a modern (for the day) outlook on life. Her name escapes me at the moment. Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry - Hide quoted text -- Show quoted text -

=====

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by Molly Friedrich - 2009/09/28 15:42

When all fails, consult the almighty Google. ^^ <http://www.maggiemayfashions.com/regency.html> While ascending a flight of stairs, a gentleman would precede a woman; While descending a flight of stairs, a gentleman would follow her. This allowed for a ladies ankles to always be hidden from a gentleman's eye. ...and of course the airship crew members will usually be found under the stairs with a hand drill.

=====

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by Mike Lathrop - 2009/09/28 15:42

Chronicles of Vidocq - I got it from netflix earlier this summer and it impacted posterior with a steam-powered boot. Quite early-period for steampunk, as it is set in the 18th century, but I think folks would love it if they haven't seen it yet. On Thu, Sep 3, 2009 at 9:51 AM, Adam Harrison <adame...@gmail.com> wrote: Sky Captain is good. The was originall talk of Vi-something-or-other (a French film). If we wanted to stick with more kid oriented films, I also have Those Magnificent Men And Their Flying Machines, The Amazing Race (see Prof. Fate in action!), and Chitty Chitty Bang Bang. If we wanted to go with an anime slant, I also have Steam Boy. -Adam

=====

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by K. Schroeder - 2009/09/28 15:42

One of my favorite Victorian protagonists is an Egyptologist with a modern (for the day) outlook on life. Her name escapes me at the moment. Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

=====

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by Thomas Hayes - 2009/09/28 15:42

I have Laputa & Howls Amazing Castle plus a few other steam punk anime I could bring plus lots of steam punk and genre oriented movies. Tom

=====

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by Erynn Rowan Laurie - 2009/09/28 15:42

Chronicles of Vidocq - I got it from netflix earlier this summer and it impacted posterior with a steam-powered boot. Quite early-period for steampunk, as it is set in the 18th century, but I think folks would love it if they haven't seen it yet.

=====

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by paisleypeng...@gmail.com - 2009/09/28 15:42

Yes, thank you! Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry - Hide quoted text -- Show quoted text -

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by izzit - 2009/09/28 15:42

I'd agree with Draco - generally you just hold skirts aside, out of the way, rather than coyly do the cancan. But what do YOU care? After all, you are a lady adventurer! Rules be damned! (Besides, as such, you probably wear boots, so it's not like they'll glimpse your naked ankles anyway.) And to tie it in, watch the movie Jezebel with Bette Davis, as a Victorian harlot in a red dress. Only it's a b&w movie... which is what makes it interesting. Yes to movie night!

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by izzit - 2009/09/28 15:42

anything came of it. Well, I might be able to remedy this situation... I bought a new house with a large back yard and a (borrowed) data projector. Weather permitting, we could put a screen up, set up the data projector, dvd player, and stereo outside, and do an outdoor movie night. People wishing to attend bring seating, snacks, and drinks, and it should be a grand time. And we would need to pick a movie that wouldn't get me in trouble if the neighbor kids peaked through the fence. This weekend looks rainy, but we should have at least a couple more warm weekend evening this year. Anyone interested? -Adam

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by paisleypeng...@gmail.com - 2009/09/28 15:42

The costuming is great in Young Indiana Jones but the acting wasn't the best. Too bad cause I really wanted to like it!
Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry - Hide quoted text -- Show quoted text -

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by Thomas Hayes - 2009/09/28 15:42

The Unsinkable Molly Flynn might also give a few ideas on what is acceptable.

date movie Double-post of etiquette question (Pleaseforgive)

Posted by Thomas Hayes - 2009/09/28 15:42

Ya the gas masks for horses in WW1 really sold me on the amount of detail they put in that series.